

South Carolina Historical Society

Become a part of the tradition.

In 1855 some of South Carolina's most distinguished citizens came together to record and preserve the past – for the sake of the future. Motivating them was the fear that, if they didn't act, there would be no heritage left for future generations.

The mandate of our founders remains our mission today: "To collect information respecting every portion of our state, to preserve it, and when deemed advisable, to publish it."

The Society is a private, non-profit organization, depending entirely on the generosity of individual members. Please join us in preserving and extending awareness of South Carolina history.
