South Carolina Historical Society

A Catalog

"Of all the manuscripts held at the South Carolina Historical Society, records regarding the lives of slaves continue to be some of the most valuable and least used by patrons visiting the Society's research library and manuscript archives. To compensate for this, we have compiled a list of several hundred documents in the Society's collections that contain information related to slaves in South Carolina."

- From the introduction by W. Eric Emerson, Ph.D., executive director of the South Carolina Historical Society
